York County at a glance...

York County is comprised of 911 square miles and the County's landscape is varied. It's made up of 72 municipalities which include 35 townships, 36 boroughs and a city. The City of York and its environs, along with other established growth areas throughout the County, are areas in which development is well suited. The County's rich agricultural history continues in the rural areas today. The County's natural resources and open spaces are protected.

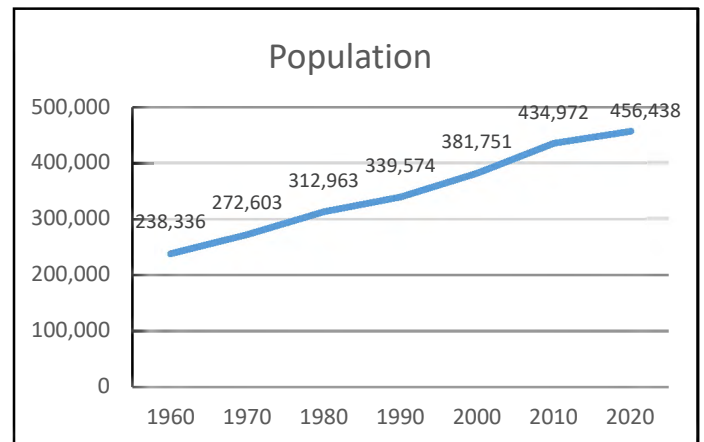

Although officially founded in 1749, York County's history predates that. The Susquehannocks settled in the Lower Susquehanna River Valley in the early 1600. The area officially opened to settlers in 1733. The Continental Congress convened in York and the Articles of Confederation were adopted in 1778. The years preceding the Civil War saw growth and shift from iron industry to related industries. The Confederates invaded York County in 1863, just prior to the Battle of Gettysburg. In the 1880s, public utilities began to appear in York City. In 1940, York business leaders created "the York Plan," which becomes a national model for WWII manufacturing. Rocky Ridge County Park opened in 1968. Development boomed with 66,850 housing units added from 1970-2000. The County of York adopted its first comprehensive plan in 1992. In 1994, the 17-month Caterpillar strike began and in 1996, the plant closed.

The York County Heritage Program has designated 49 heritage resources to highlight the County's historic, cultural and natural features. Check them out at Exploring York County's Heritage at www.ycpc.org.

As shown, the population of York County has increased steadily. With an average increase of 12% per decade through 2010, it has outpaced the growth of the State. After 2010, the rate has slowed to approximately 5%, which is still above the State average.

In 2020, 5.7% of the population was under the age of 5 years and 17.5% was over the age of 65 years. The median age is 41 years. Approximately 81% of the total population is White and 8.6% are Hispanic.

There are approximately 226,081 persons in the workforce. Among the top employers are Wellspan York Hospital, the Federal and County governments, Wal-Mart Associates, and Giant Food Stores.

The median household income is $68,940, and 8.7% of individuals are below poverty.

There are 16 public school districts in York County. There are 72,193 students (K-12) enrolled in public school.
